Gold Rush Pairs Today

(and again on Friday)

The ACBL is offering this gold pairs game at tournaments for 0-300 and 300-750 players; these games are scored over the two sessions, not as two separate games. You will only play against other 0-750 MP players. Gold points paid to section top and overall winners. Players are competing in a 0-750 game, but the 0-300 MP players can win gold points by placing in the overalls (as there are no gold points given for finishing overall in the 0-300 games.) You must play in both sessions. See you at 1PM and 7PM.

DAILY GRIN

Do you know the Elvis Presley coup? It's when your left-hand opponent leads from away from the A-Q around to your K-x: the King is no longer dead!

After spending the night in a blizzard, a tourist incurred frostbite on his left palm and fingers. In other words: The hand was ice cold.

Don never leads away from a king. He was told not to, so he never did. Finally, he passes away and he finds himself in a bridge game. He is on lead against 4S holding:

Kx, Kxx, Kxxx, Kxxx

Right then and there he knew where he was!

From the 2015 World Championship ...

England vs. USA2

By John Hunt, East Sussex Bridge Club

You are South, representing England against USA2 in the World Championships held in India last Autumn. It is the very last board – the 96th! - the result of which will decide the Bronze Medal (so no pressure then!) The contract is 4 & and West leads the &J. Plan the play:

I was watching on the excellent medium of Bridge Base Online and thought that the first thing I would do, would be to win in dummy and cash the two top diamonds, throwing a club. After that, it would be are several ways of playing it, the simplest being to play ace and another trump. The BBO commentators were of the same opinion. However, after much thought, the English declarer won the lead in dummy and immediately played a trump to the AJ, which West won and played a second club. Declarer played dummy's king and was surprised (and no doubt, crestfallen), to see East ruff it! When West regained the lead in hearts, he was able to cash a winning club – one down! A tad unlucky perhaps (clubs 6-1!), but...

The full hand was:

This was a disaster for England, the bronze medal going to USA2. The same contract made with an overtrick at the other table. If the English declarer had made 11 tricks, England would have won the Bronze Medal by the narrow margin of 1.7 IMPs. If he had managed to rake in 10 tricks (as I firmly believe most of we lesser lights would have done easily enough), England would have taken the medal by the even narrower margin of 0.7 IMPs (after 96 boards!) Wow!!!!

Cheating and Ethics in Bridge - Part 2 of 4

by Larry Cohen

Ed. Note: The bridge world has been shaken this year with some major cheating scandals. This year, we are running Larry's long series on "cheating and ethics." We'll start with ethics and eventually build up to the major scandals rocking our great game.

Yesterday's article was the first in the series is on what Larry calls the most common ethics problem in bridge: Partner Makes a Slow Pass. Today we continue with other ethical tempo issues.

Other Tempo Problems

When a player takes a long time and passes, his partner is "ethically bound" to not take advantage. There are other ethical tempo issues:

1. Fast passes with minimums. You decide to open 1 ◆ (both sides vulnerable) with: ♠ A764 ◆ 6 ◆ KJ942 ♣ QJ3. Partner responds 1 ◆ and RHO overcalls 2 ♣. Do not "fast pass." If you pass in the same instant that RHO takes his fingers off his 2 ♣ bid, you are telling your partner you have a dead minimum. You must (ethically) take at least 2-3 seconds to pass. The difference between "instant" and "2-3 seconds" is very discernible. Don't give the show away with a very fast pass. Don't let the tempo of your pass convey your hand strength.

With, say, ♣ A76 ♣ 42 ♠ KQ10762 ♣ A2, you might actually have something to think about (should I freely bid 2♠?) and your pass might take 3-5 seconds. Don't distinguish the 2 hands shown by fast-passing with the first one, but thinking a little with the second one. What if RHO overcalled preemptively with 3♣? Again, you must wait an appropriate amount of time (about 5-10 seconds after a preempt) with either hand. Don't "fast-pass" to show a minimum. Here is a video showing the proper and improper tempo/disposition.

Note/warning: Please don't be offended by the term "unethical." Newer players might innocently bid out of tempo without bad intentions. It is intentional poor tempo (intended to convey information) that is unethical.

- 2. Fast penalty doubles. Not vulnerable against vulnerable opponents, you open 1♣ holding: ♠ A6542 ♠ A2 ♠ 32 ♣ KQJ10.
 LHO doubles and partner raises to 2♠. RHO competes with 3♣. Of course you want to double, but do it ethically. Don't snap out a double card as soon as 3♣ hits the table. Don't let saliva come out of your mouth. You can't convey to your partner that you have a clear-cut double.
- 3. Fast signoffs. Nobody is vulnerable and RHO opens 3♥. You hold: ♠ KQJ1076 ♥ 32 ♠ 632 ♣ K2. Probably you aren't worth it, but you stretch and decide to overcall 3♠. Partner cuebids 4♥ to show a big (slam-invitational) spade raise. You must not bid a fast (less than one second) 4♠. That would convey to your partner that you have the worst overcall in history (you do!). You must sign off in normal tempo.

WEST	NORTH	EAST	SOUTH
	3♥	3 ♠	Pass
4	Pass	4♠*		*Immediate bid of 4S by East, with NO pause: Now we have an unethical fast signoff by East (the overcaller):

The person signing off should pause at least 3-5 seconds so as to not tell her partner s/he is dead minimum:

New Year's Resolution: I will try to bid/play in tempo. It's not just fast actions which cause trouble. Tomorrow, we will look at some slow actions in both the bidding and defense which cause problems.

Cheating and Ethics in Bridge - Part 2 of 4

by Larry Cohen

Before we continue on with Cheating and Ethics, here are my thoughts on some on good ol' common sense and politeness. Not all of these fall strictly under the category of "bridge ethics," but none of your opponents will like it if you:

- 1. Come to the table dressed like a bum.
- 2. Come to the table reeking of strong perfume.
- 3. Come to the table smelling like you never take showers.
- 4. Chew and/or pop gum.
- 5. Snap cards (or play them in any obnoxious way)
- 6. Delay the game by:
 - a. Postmorteming before the round is complete.
 - b. Writing in your scorecard when it is your turn to bid or play.
 - c. Doing anything (scoring, commenting, day-dreaming) that holds up the game when it is your turn.

Don't mix this up with THINKING -- which is always allowed if you have a bridge reason to think.

- 7. Call attention to a bid or play by making it in an exaggerated manner. (Example: You signal with the •9 and want to make sure partner sees it--so you leave your finger on it just an extra few seconds before turning it over; or worse, make eye contact with partner before turning it over). If your bid is alertable and partner isn't alerting, don't give the show away. Act calmly. Don't stare at partner or draw extra attention to your bid with a stare or dazed look!
- 8. Fumble with the bidding box. Decide on your call, then reach into the box and make your bid. Don't let your fingers "hover" over the bidding box.
- 9. Criticize your partner or even worse, the opponents. If you have nothing nice to say, don't say anything at all.
- 10. Hold your finger on your played card extra time so partner will see it.

FACES AND GESTURES

"See No Evil, Hear No Evil" is good advice for bridge. Better might be: "Make no facial gestures, see no facial gestures." Yes, we can get emotional at times, but if your partner leads a spade and you make the face shown here, you are saying, "Partner, I don't like spades." Who needs legitimate bridge signals if we can signal attitude with a frown or a smile?

Need I state the obvious? It is unethical to make any gestures during the bidding or play of the hand. This includes (but is not limited to):

- 1. Smiles, frowns, agitation, staring at partner, frustration, confusion and anger.
- 2. If your partner forgets to alert your alertable bid, you must keep a poker face. Say nothing, show nothing. To do anything else is unethical. If you do commit such a sin, your partner needs to bend over backwards not to notice or act on the illegally gained information.
- 3. If you are confused by partner's bidding (what else is new), you can't show it with gestures of puzzlement or frustration. Don't do what you see here:
- 4. If you don't like your partner's bid or play (what else is new again), don't show it! Keep a poker face.
- 5. If you are annoyed (by partner or an opponent), don't show it. Stay calm, cool and collected (I know, it easy).
- 6. Any facial gesture or emotional reaction during the bidding or play of the hand is verboten. Period.

Tomorrow, Other Tempo Problems.....

The Murder of Joseph Bowne Elwell

The murder made national headlines because of Elwell's larger-than-life persona and the mysterious circumstances surrounding the crime. Elwell had been shot point-blank by a .45 revolver, yet the house was locked from the inside. The New York Times called it "among the most remarkable in the annals of crime in this country... The victim was not robbed, there was no struggle, no papers were disturbed, no one was seen to enter or leave the house after a quarter to 4 in the morning, when Elwell himself went in.'

Police failed to find the murder weapon or even any witnesses. The killer was never apprehended.

Who exactly was J.B. or "Joe" Elwell? In bridge, the man was a giant. Elwell learned whist in his youth but adapted to auction bridge as an adult. He developed a reputation in New York City's money clubs as a consistent winner, and ultimately authored several books on the game. Elwell and his partner Harold Vanderbilt (for whom the ACBL's Vanderbilt Trophy is nameBd) were considered the strongest American pair between 1910 - 1920. And Elwell's touch on the game can still be seen today. The "Elwell Double" bidding convention arises every now and then - a double of a 3NT contract that asks for a heart lead.

Talent evinced itself away from the bridge table as well. Elwell accumulated a fortune by investing in the stock market, and owned over 20 racehorses at the time of his death. He was also infamously known as a ladies' man. Elwell's secretary claimed that he slept with "about fifty women, most of them married." Several of them reportedly had a key to his house - or perhaps it was a vengeful husband who came knocking that fateful night.

Elwell has been the inspiration for several fictional books, including "The Benson Murder Case" by S.S. Van Dine. He may have also been a model for Jay Gatsby in F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Great Gatsby." Numerous books speculating on possible motives and suspects have also been penned. In his book "Bridge Axioms and Laws", Elwell ironically wrote: "Do not venture upon a post-mortem unless you are certain of what the scalpel is going to reveal."

"Do not venture upon a post-mortem unless you are certain of what the scalpel is going to reveal."
